ANSWER CALL OF ANGEL OF DEATH

Bright and Popular Young Lady Succumbs in the Flower of Her Youth.

SHE LIVED AND DIED HAPPY

Miss Alma Conoway, Who Underwent Operation, Dies From Another Affliction.

Death is a sad affair under any circumstances, but when the relentless reaper comes and claims one in the very flower of their youth, and one that was extremely popular with all who knew her, it seems that the sting of death is more acute and the sorrow deeper. Such are the facts surrounding the death of Miss Alma Conoway, who succumbed Saturday evening about six o'clock.

To know Miss Conoway was to like her. Her nature and disposition were such as to attract those who came in contact with her and cause them to hold a warm place ever afterwards in their hearts for her. Just twenty-four years of age, in the full bloom of youth, she is called by the Death Angel. One of the most striking assets in the life of the deceased was the rare temperament to always look on the bright side of life, no matter how adverse the conditions were. During the past few years she had been unfortunate to suffer several attacks of illness and was a victim of several accidents, but she went through it all with a smile and a cheery word.

Miss Conoway was a prominent worker in the Christian church and greatly enjoyed being identified with any charitable or commendable task.

The attending physician pronounced the cause of the death some unknown toxic condition of the brain following an operation for appendicitis. The doctors are at a loss to understand the peculiar conditions as it is something which has never come up in their long experience as practicing physicians. Miss Conoway was operated on for appendicitis at the Sexton sanitarium last Saturday morning and soon revived in perfect condition. The operation was successful in every respect and was not in any way the cause of her death. Soon after she revived from the effects of the anesthetic, the unexpected symptoms developed and

CASE BY JURY IN CARTHAGE

Ruby vs. Ewing Tried in Squire Benjamin's Court.

The case of Ruby vs. Ewing for possession of real estate was tried in Squire Benjamin's court in Carthage Friday. The case was tried before a jury and was decided in favor of Ewing, the defendant. The law firm of Watson, Tittsworth & Green represented the defendant, and Douglas Morris, the plaintiff.

soon caused her death. Dr. Souders, brain and heart specialist was called from Indianapolis but could not explain the sudden complications.

The deceased is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Conoway, and one sister, Mrs. Walter Peters.

The funeral services will be conducted by Rev. R. W. Abberley of the Main Street Christian church, and Rev. Frank B. Thomas of Kansas, Illinois, at the home in North Morgan street this evening at 7:30 o'clock. The funeral will start from the residence tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock for Orange. A short service will be held in the Orange Christian church, after which the remains will be buried in the cemetery north of Orange.

MADE HASTY EXIT AT THIRST PARLOR

Mayor Cowing and the Police Figure in a "Near-Raid" in This City Sunday.

SIXTEEN-TO-ONE PROPOSITION

According to the police one of the banks kept open yesterday. Not a national or private bank, but the Bank saloon in West Second street. Mayor Cowing and the officers got a tip that the saloon was doing business in violation of the Sunday closing law and a plan of action was made to surround the place. In some manner a tip of the officials' intentions was passed through the guard line to the inside and the police got to the rear of the saloon in time to see the men scrambling out like sheep. They counted sixteen doing the "hot foot." The near-arrest occurred about ten-thirty Sunday morning. The affair will call for a strict surveillance by the officers in the future.

FRAZEE WILL TALK FOR OLD DEPAUW

Local Young Man, in Sophomore Year, Wins Out in Oratorical Contest.

GETS FIRST PLACE ON TEAM

Friends of Lewis Frazee here will be pleased to hear that he was a successful contestant in the DePauw University oratorical contest. He was awarded first place on the debating team that will represent the University in a number of debates in the near future. Frazee is a Sophomore and it is quite an honor for a "soph" to win out over upper classmen. The young orator is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Frazee of North Main street.

"A GENTLEMAN FROM MISSISSIPPI"

Our next serial story is one we feel proud in announcing, as it is timely and should interest everyone. The opening chapters will begin in Thursday's issue.

"A Gentleman from Mississippi" succeeds "The Man of the Hour" as the greatest political play and newspaper story ever produced in this country. The great strength of "The Man of the Hour" was in exposing the graft in city government at a time when the cities of the country were under the closest investigation. Now we present "A Gentleman from Mississippi" dealing with politics in the United States Senate at a time when Tillman, Foraker and other prominent figures in the Senate are under investigation by the people of this country.

With the greatest fight between the President and the Senate now on, and with the continuance of that fight until the end of the present Congress, the Daily Republican in publishing this story, will be in a class by itself, far ahead of all others.

The play "A Gentleman from Mississippi" is attracting crowded houses and causing much talk. The story written from the play for newspaper publication proves as great success as "The Man of the Hour." It is even better than "The Man of the Hour," for it deals with conditions that are interesting not alone in cities but throughout the country. The election of new senators in many states is an added element of the timeliness of this interesting story. Don't miss the opening chapters Thursday.

CAME PEDDLING OF HIS NOTIONS

Dr. Bryan Made a forcible Address on "Man and His Work" at Men's Big Meeting.

MUSICAL PROGRAM EXCELLENT

Speaker Brightened His Remarks With Catchy Phrases and Many Bits of Humor.

"Peddler of notions."

And that he is, too. Dr. E. B. Bryan, president of Franklin college, in his address on "Man and His Work" before the Men's Big Meeting Sunday afternoon at the St. Paul's M. E. church, described his vocation as such. By his simplicity of expression and perfect enunciation and with a thought in every sentence that he uttered, Dr. Bryan made a marked impression upon his audience of 500 men.

"If there is anyone for whom I have no use," said the speaker, "it is the unnecessary idle rich and the unnecessary idle poor." The orator then explained his thought by an amusing incident telling of the life of a wealthy family with whom he had acquaintance, how they simply "wintered" and "summered" and never accomplished anything in this life. "My young man," said President Bryan, "there is no easy road to success, but all must travel the one worn path—that of hard work." He then brought out the fact that many young people rely upon their own brilliancy, so to speak, to lead them to success, and thus so many failures. He related an incident in his own personal experience by which he proved the fact that it is not the brilliant young man who succeeds, but the plodder and the worker.

In the second sub-division of his subject the speaker drove the fact home to his hearers that a man is no greater than the work which he accomplishes in life. "We have the proverbial dry goods box whittler in our city as I suppose you have," said Dr. Bryan, "who whittles and whittles until he has nothing left. That which he has done is nothing, so is the man nothing." No matter how great the things which a man accomplishes, the size of the man is determined exactly by that.

President Bryan told a story in which he was a participant, illustrating the fact that if a man is successful he is so absorbed by his profession that it shows itself in his very make-up. "Not that you can tell a school teacher by the clothes he wears," said the speaker, "but he shows his profession to be what it is by his very movements, actions, and speech." He related an incident of how in a conversation between himself and a stranger, after attempting to keep the man from knowing his profession, was forced to tell him. The man replied "I thought so." "This only proves the fact," said the speaker, "which I have said, that a man is so taken up and absorbed by his work that it shows itself in his very being and cannot be covered over, no matter how hard one tries."

Will C. McColgin made an excellent presiding officer, acquitting himself well with a short introductory speech. The musical program has never been excelled at any of the previous meetings. The usual seven-eights of a double quartet rendered a selection which was highly appreciated and the several numbers by A. P. Wagoners orchestra was one of the many things which made the meeting enjoyable to all.

FRIGHTENED HORSE UPSET OCCUPANTS

From Sleigh on Curbstone and Ran Away, Causing Considerable Damage.

OCCUPANTS SLIGHTLY BRUISED

The first accident of the sleighing season occurred yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Will Havens, Miss Lavina Harves, and Miss Anna Merrill were thrown from a sleigh at the corner of Morgan and Fourth streets. As they were turning the corner the horse became frightened, upset the sleigh, throwing its occupants against the curbstone, and ran up the street, finally breaking away from the sleigh before it was caught.

Aside from a few bruises the ladies were not injured but were considerably shaken up by their fall. The runner of the cutter caught in the street car track causing the animal to frighten and run. The sleigh was slightly damaged, the shafts being torn loose and broken. The horse ran several blocks in West Fifth street where it finally fell and was caught by City Marshall Price.

ELOPERS WERE HERE.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Thomas of Indianapolis, who eloped to Louisville, Ky., last Tuesday and were married, were the guests of the groom's father, J. Q. Thomas, Sunday.

BUT IT'S VIOLENT EXERCISE.

Indianapolis Star: Lieutenant Governor Hall, when he announces that the session of the Senate will be opened with prayer by the Rev. Mr. So-and-So, speaks of the Senate session as "the exercises"—which they are, perhaps.

SECOND ANNUAL CORN SHOW

Centerville Show to be Called Sixth District Corn School.

AGED CIVIL WAR VETERAN IS DEAD

John Parsons Passed Away at His Home Near Moscow Saturday Afternoon.

DEATH AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

John Parsons died at his home near Moscow Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, with heart disease. Mr. Parsons had been ill only two days when death came and it was rather unexpected as he had never been troubled with this particular disease. He was 64 years of age and a veteran of the Civil war. Parsons has resided with his wife, Mrs. Harry Hays, living three and one-half miles south of Moscow, for a number of years.

The deceased is survived by two children, Otis Parsons of Alexandria and Miss Daisy Parsons of St. Louis, Mo. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Patterson of Milroy this afternoon in the Moscow Christian church at 2:00 o'clock. The remains were buried in the Moscow cemetery.

VERY RARE MUSICAL TREAT

Will be the College Singing Girls Here Thursday.

The concert to be given by the College Singing Girls at the Main Street Christian church next Thursday promises to be the musical treat of the season. One of the novelties will be the impersonations and humorous song by J. Ferdinand Eccles.

PROHIBITION IN GEORGIA

And Dispensary Law in North Carolina.

As Seen by John Abercrombie, Who Writes Interesting Letter

Augusta, Ga., Jan. 14. Editor Republican:

When I visited this beautiful city of 50,000 two years ago, the statewide prohibition law was not yet in effect, and there was a "whiskey-shop" in about every fifth or sixth store room. Besides almost every grocery carried a line of "wet goods" the same as they carried sugar and coffee. However, in January of 1907 the prohibition law went into effect, and every saloon in this great State of Georgia was closed.

Having now been in effect over a year, some of the results of the law are apparent. It seems to be the consensus of opinion that the abolishing of the saloon has been a great blessing, and that much good has resulted—especially to the negro. It was said that the law would kill the town; that there would be numbers of vacant store rooms; that many, many men would be thrown out of

TO DISCUSS THE COUNTY OPTION

Zetophonian Debating Society Will Settle the Question at Once.

AT THEIR FIRST MEETING

Socialists Have All Taken to the Woods and Other Questions Will be Debated.

The Zetophonian debating society cannot wait to see if the commissioners order an election, or whether either the question of dry or wet is for the best interest of the most people, consequently they will settle the question, once and for all time, at their next meeting Thursday night. The society will have the first meeting of the season at the law office of Dennis O'Neil in the Poe building, in North Main street. Some of the best speakers will be lined up in the county option question and a spirited debate is promised on this timely subject.

In the days gone by some of the brightest "young talent" in this city were prominent and enthusiastic members of the society, but in the last two years, four or five Socialists edged their way in and insisted on discussing their cause at every meeting. If the question would be one as foreign to Socialism as the domestic duties of a Persian housewife, said Socialists would inject their doctrines into the discussion to the disgust of the other members who had sane ideas on all questions and who put themselves up as being broad-minded men, open for conviction on any subject.

Another cloud that hung over the society was the fact that a former treasurer "eloped" with the funds of the club, some eighty-four cents, and his bondsmen refused to liquidate. This caused more or less friction, and class strife. Class strife because about half of the members have at some time or another, absconded with funds. But the dove of peace has been coaxed back on the job and will preside on the perch hereafter.

A union of the 18,000 milk producers who supply Chicago is in contemplation. It is hoped to form a close organization to regulate the price of milk and buy feed and machinery on a co-operative plan.

employment, etc., etc., all of which arguments we have heard in our own State in connection with the county option law. However, the fact is that there are few or no vacant rooms in this town at present. As the saloons closed up, other lines of business rented and occupied the buildings. The capital invested in saloons was diverted into other and more legitimate channels, and the men who were interested in saloons and their employees, found other means of livelihood and other employment.

Of course, the boot-legger and the blind tiger has been rampant, as might have been expected, but all violators are being vigorously prosecuted and it is said that the $500 fines being handed out will soon put a stop to their practices.

The ministers of the city are organized and, backed up by many good

Saw a lot of earth beings sitting about in a great stone building—the largest in the city. Most of them had a fuzzy growth on their face and bit off a piece of stuff like baked mud which they chewed violently and spit out on the installment plan. They talked about many questions and everybody had a different opinion of everything. Sometimes they grew red in the face and conversed loud as if in anger. They had long, heated discussions about wet and dry and seemed to be deeply concerned in the weather. I thought it must be an insane asylum like I saw at another point, but one of the earth beings on taking his leave spoke about it being a club—the Ananias club I think he said.

citizens, see that all violators are severely fined and punished.

It is said that business along other lines has greatly improved since the prohibition law went into effect. One grocer, near whose store was formerly a saloon, spoke as follows: "My business has considerably increased. It used to be that a man would enter my store and haggle for ten minutes over the price of a pound of bacon. Then he would go into the saloon next door, buy two or three drinks at ten cents each, plank down a dollar for a quart of whiskey, and not give the matter a second thought. In other words, he was stingy when it came to buying groceries for his wife and children, but quite liberal in the saloon. Now almost all the money that the poor man spent on whiskey is spent for food and clothing—surely a good result, for it means that wives and children are better fed and clothed, consequently more healthy, and the belly of the husband less often full of corn juice."

A doctor here, who has a large practice, told me that his collections in 1908 were easier and better than during any year since he had practiced medicine. He ascribed this to prohibition, and said that he considered that he was now getting at least part of the money that formerly went to the saloons.

Across the Savannah river from here, in South Carolina, there is a peculiar condition of affairs. The "dispensary" has been an institution there for years, but a recent county option law passed there, allows each county to decide at the polls whether they will abolish or retain the dispensary. Under this law about 24 counties have gone dry and 21 remain wet and retain their dispensaries. Under the "dispensing" act the county enters the liquor business and conducts, controls and monopolizes it, buying whiskey at wholesale and retailing it in quantities (original packages) of less than a quart not to be drunk on the premises.

I spent a few hours in Aiken, S. C., on Monday and among other things I visited the dispensary. I met the "dispenser," and found him a very affable and accommodating gentleman. (I believe he does not rank as a bartender, but as a county officer), and was invited behind the counter. I was astounded at the business I saw done there in one half hour, and the business is a strictly cash one.

Mr. Overstreet told me that during the last quarter the Aiken dispensary retailed over the counter 600 barrels of whiskey, of which 300 barrels was cheap whiskey, that is, it sold at 50, 55 and 60 cents a quart. That is the grade of whiskey bought by the negro and poor white, and such "fire water" does the drinker as much harm as it ever did Lo, the poor Indian. After taking a drink of that stuff I should think a man would want a chaser quick.

There are, in Aiken county, S. C., five dispensaries, the largest of which is in North Augusta, just across the Savannah river from this city of Augusta. That joint does a land-office business as it is the most convenient place for all Augusta (population 50,000) to get whiskey. One has only to cross a bridge like the suspension bridge at Cincinnati, and one passes from Georgia to South Carolina, and at the other end of the bridge is the "dispensary."

This place has been known to sell $9,500 worth of whiskey at retail in four days. The law says that the dispensary must open at sunrise and close at sunset. On Saturdays, along toward sundown, there is always a pushing, shoving mob trying to get up to the counter, and the sun always goes down and leaves long lines of thirsty ones disappointed.

Aiken county, S. C., made above $78,000 out of the whiskey business in 1908. I am told that taxes in Aiken county are considerably less than one per cent, and that they are thinking of still further reducing the rate. The county is getting wealthy out of the whiskey trade.

Last Saturday at the Beech Island barbecue I met a young man who upon being introduced, apologized and explained that he was "full of spirits," which was a fact. He produced the inevitable pint flask from his hip pocket and was greatly disappointed when I refused to partake, for he it known that to drink out of the same bottle with a Southerner is about the same as breaking bread with a Mohomedan. However, if one would take a drink down here every time the bottle was offered, one would be "full of spirits" all the time, for about every third man has a flask in his hip pocket.

The average Southerner is very hospitable and greets you as if you were a long-lost brother, and the nice part of it is that the greeting is real, not counterfeit.

I could tell you a lot more about the beautiful women and the fine Southern cooking, and if I were a brave man I might tackle the negro question. But lest I weary you, I will close this long letter with the following amusing clipping from the Augusta Chronicle, a communication from one of its correspondents:

I have heard from Judge Taft's visit to Beech Island. A lady from there told of the comments of an aged negro mammy, who had improved the opportunity to catch a glimpse of the president-elect when he was a guest of the Beech Island Farmers Club:

"Bless glory, Missus, I done seen de President. Fust, I scared to look Den I peep out on him. Den I look hard—as hard as I could.

"Gracious, Missus, I ain't see nothin' but a fine lookin' old Marster. He look happy when he gaze on de barbecue.

"But, Missus, I never so disappointed in my life. Dat man done hide all his diamonds. He must to turn his coat trimmed in gold inside out and hid de crown and de scepter. If he had horns, he hid 'em too.

"And I watch him through de window when he eat. Declare, Missus, he take to de barbecue just like any good old Marster befo' freedom. I sho am disappointed in de President."

IS ROOSEVELT THE PLAINTIFF?

This Is the Question Washington Is Asking.

THE CASE AGAINST THE WORLD

That the United States Is Not the Actual Plaintiff, as Indicated in the Title of the Case, Is Plainly Intimated in Certain Quarters, and the Suggestion Is Made in the Same Connection That the President Is the Real Complainant—Case Unique in Government Annals.

Washington, Jan. 18.—The latest and most interesting suggestion regarding the sensational developments of Saturday involving the service of subpoenas upon a number of newspaper men in this city and elsewhere, is that an individual, and not the United States government, is the real plaintiff in the case. It is true that the subpoenas served here read, "The United States vs. the Press Publishing Company," but if the proposed action is criminal in character, as is generally assumed to be the case, that would be the form of a subpoena, even where an individual is the complainant, according to the practice in the District of Columbia.

The identity of this individual, or individuals, for there may be more than one of them, is purely a matter of speculation, for the public will have to await the issue of the promised statement of Attorney general Bonaparte, in the course of a day or two, to get any accurate understanding of this remarkable case. Possibly President Roosevelt himself is the complainant; or it may be that the action was begun by William Nelson Cromwell, or by Douglas Robinson or any of the persons named in the original newspaper publications in an invidious way. A significant fact is that Mr. Cromwell was in Washington when the action was taken Saturday of serving the subpoenas, though he left during the night for New York.

Sharp Differences of Opinion.

Local lawyers are discussing the case with interest and already sharp differences of opinion appear as to the right of the United States government to prosecute a criminal libel proceeding against either an individual or a newspaper, which is after all the bone of contention, for there can be no question of the right of an individual to bring such an action. It is pointed out that the supreme court is on record in the Goodwin case as denying the power of a United States circuit court to take jurisdiction in a criminal libel case.

On the other hand, while it is admitted that there is no statutory law warranting such an action by the government, it certainly does enjoy such a right under the common law, as an absolutely necessary measure of power to protect the very existence of the government.

The White House Silent.

The officials here remain mute and there were no developments in the case today to be learned. The district attorney remains snowbound in his country home, the attorney general of the United States is at home in Baltimore, and at the White House there was a flat refusal to discuss the matter.

Among the men connected with the corps of Washington correspondents known to have received subpoenas in connection with this case are Otto Carmichael, Charles S. Ambert and E. Jesse Conway, all of the New York World staff; James Hornaday, Indianapolis News; Jeremiah Matthews, New York Sun; Harris M. Crist, Brooklyn Eagle, and William Smith, a newsboy of Washington, engaged in selling New York papers.

News from New York states that similar subpoenas have been served on J. Angus Shaw and William P. McLoughlin, respectively secretary and editor of sports and athletics of the Press Publishing company, publishing the World, while news from Indianapolis states that six Indianapolis men have been summoned to appear in Washington next Wednesday. It is believed from this that the initial steps have been taken in an action against Delavan Smith, owner of the Indianapolis News, for utterances during the campaign which dealt with an alleged graft in connection with the acquisition of the Panama canal. Four of the Indianapolis men thus summoned are connected with the News. They are Hilton U. Brown, general manager; Bart Parker, auditor; Edward Harding, foreman of the composing room, and Charles A. Clark, cashier. The others who will give testimony are Albert Sahn, county auditor, and J. E. Berry, township assessor. It is presumed they are called to establish the ownership of the paper, in other words, that Mr. Smith appears as such on public records.

There is no doubt that the subpoenas all have to do with a suit for libel which, it is believed, has been brought by the government in New York against the World.

Piano Tuning and Rebuilding

As evidence regarding my ability to do strictly high class work and such as will please the most exacting, I submit the following extracts from letters of commendation, coming from such sources as should convince the most critical that my work is of the highest order.

Urbana, Ill., Sept. 24, 1906.

Mr. S. E. Secoy has rebuilt a Steinway Grand Piano for the University School of Music, and his work has been done in an entirely satisfactory manner.

I consider him an unusually skillful workman, and should not hesitate to intrust any tuning, voicing or rebuilding to him.

F. L. LAWRENCE,

Director of the School of Music of the University of Illinois.

I cheerfully corroborate the above.

N. HAY,

Purchasing Agent of the University of Illinois.

Onarga, Ill., Sept. 8, 1907.

Mr. S. E. Secoy has done some very fine work for us in the way of Piano tuning.

His reconstruction of one of our Grands has resulted in as fine an instrument as I ever heard played. His workmanship is thorough in every particular. He has done our tuning for the past year and we have been highly pleased with this as well. He gave satisfaction in this particular to Mr. Sherwood of Chicago, who gave our commencement recital. We commend his work most cordially.

SHIVELY'S TOGA NEARLY READY

New Indiana Senator to Be Elected Tomorrow.

BRIEF SESSION HELD TODAY

Indiana General Assembly Did Not Reconvene Until 2 O'clock This Afternoon and Then Only for a Brief Session, Legislation Pausing for the Event of the Session, the Election of a United States Senator, Which Will Take Place Tomorrow Morning—Some of the More Important Bills Now Before the Assembly.

Indianapolis, Jan. 18.—The legislature met at 2 o'clock this afternoon, but was in session only a short time, adjourning until tomorrow morning, when B. F. Shively will be elected to the United States senate. Senator Robert E. Proctor of Elkhart has been chosen to present the name of Benjamin F. Shively as Democratic caucus nominee for United States senator to succeed Senator Hemenway, to the senate, and Michael C. Thornton, representative from Floyd county to present his name to the house.

Senator Edgar Durre will present Hemenway as the Republican caucus nominee to the senate, and Representative Williams of Warrick county will nominate Hemenway in the house. The nomination speeches will be limited to ten minutes each.

Some Proposed Legislation.

Some of the more important of the bills introduced to this date in the two houses are:

The bill repealing the county local option law.

The Bland bill on the liability of employers.

The Cox primary election bill (with a bill by Senator E. E. Moore to follow this week).

The Merchants' association public accounting bill.

The Mattingly bill to give the railroad commission supervision over all public utility corporations.

The Stotsenburg bill on governments in cities of the third and fourth classes.

The bill for a governor's mansion.

The measure to repeal the metropolitan police act.

While these might be named as the most important of the bills introduced up to date, there are a number of others which are of much general interest, and many more are to be offered both in the senate and the house. Among those which might be regarded as being somewhat less important but still of public interest are:

The Mattingly campaign expense bill. Various bills pertaining to the much-mooted "three-mile" road law.

Two bills concerning employment agencies, the Hawkins and Harlan measures.

The Cox compulsory voting bill.

The school transfer tuition bill.

The bill to do away with the school wagon.

The measures to provide expense money for the return of fugitives from justice.

The proposed law to charge an additional dime railroad fare as a penalty for failure to buy railroad tickets.

The measure against stream pollution (and others on the same subject to come).

The bills for an inheritance tax, several in number.

Measures concerning fish and game protection.

Bank deposit guarantee bills (two in number so far).

In addition to these there have been a large number of bills introduced pertaining to certain localities or conditions. Among those of local application which will cause a mighty stir are the various measures for additional court facilities here and there about the state.

In Behalf of Old Soldiers.

Representative Furnas of Randolph county will introduce a bill providing for the creation of a department of soldiers' claims and the appointment of a commissioner of soldiers' claims, who is required by the provisions of the bill to establish an office in the state house. The commissioner would also prosecute all claims of soldiers against the state or the United States for pensions or other claims, furnish blanks, collect evidence in all cases for pensions and other claims for all soldiers and their widows, visit the state and national homes where soldiers are domiciled, once in every three months and report as to their general condition, and collect evidence in these homes where it is obtainable. The salary of said commissioner would be $2,500 per annum and traveling expenses. The state of Ohio has had a department of this character for several years, and it has been the means of saving to the soldiers and their widows, in the prosecution of their claims, a large amount. Indiana has more than 50,000 soldiers living and many widows.

Costly Garage Fire in Boston.

Boston, Jan. 18.—Fire Sunday destroyed six garages and 348 automobiles. No lives were lost. The damage is estimated at $800,000.

Scale Books for sale at the Republican Office. Weigh Blanks of all kinds made to suit every want.

MANURE SPREADERS

E. A. LEE

Handles the Black Hawk and the 20th Century, both as good as the best if not the best sold today. It does not pay to handle manure in the old way. Since time is so valuable and labor so high, double the results can be obtained if the time, work and manure are applied right. They are money makers.

Rules and Conditions

1. The Merchant's advertisement must be in the Daily Republican on the day the purchase is made.
2. Vehicles, Automobiles, Pianos and Organs, Diamonds or Jewelry of more than $20 in value, Farming Implements or Building Material will not be included in these purchases.
3. All purchases must be for cash, or if you purchase an article on time within the time limit and pay for it before May 17th, it will be considered a cash purchase, provided the merchant's advertisement appeared in this paper on the day you pay for the article.

4. The $50 in Gold will be divided as follows: $25 to the person having the largest cash amount of purchases during the four months; $15 to the second largest, and $10 to the third.
5. Any irregularity in any one receipt will forfeit the right of the holder to be a contestant, and none of that person's receipts will be considered.
6. All receipts must be handed in at this office, or mailed to us (all postage prepaid) on or before May 22d, 1909.
7. In considering the merchant's advertisement, it must be at least a space of four inches or more.
8. Your weekly or monthly MERCHANDISE BILLS will be considered CASH if you pay for them before the 15th of May, and provided the merchant's advertisement appears in the Daily Republican the day you pay same.

Who Will Be Rushville's Best Patron?

It will be no trouble at all to take a few receipts with you when you go shopping. Let the husband take a few with him for his purchases. $50 looks pretty good.

This Offer is Open to Everybody

Whether you live in Rush, Decatur, Fayette, Shelby or Henry County--trade in Rushville, is all we ask.

One fellow had a "sick" excuse for not going to church yesterday. Said he was afraid he would fall.

When children are told what a smart man their father is, they look at their mother, as if asking her if they are to believe it.

Connersville will go dry without voting on it, if they don't put in a new water works system soon.

The "Hall-Room" boys were busy Sunday calling on the new Lieut.-Governor, F. J. Hall. It was probably the most strenuous day for him since the legislature met.

Let some one shout "Shorty" in a crowd of men, and every tall man in the crowd will look up.

Not many Rushville girls are "killing time"—that is "sleighting it."

There are many fellows who own piano players that can't pronounce half of the pieces of music they play.

There is not much love-making that is serious, and little of the winter variety that is frivolous. When a man walks half a dozen blocks through cold and snow to see a girl, he means business. Susceptible girls shouldn't believe anything that is said to them in July and August.

On account of this being "centenary week," honoring the memory of Edgar Allen Poe, the Zetophotonian debating society will meet in the "Poe" building in Main street and do their "ravin'."

THE CENTENARY OF EDGAR ALLAN POE

High School Will Commemorate the Birth of Often Maligned "Poor Wanderful Poe."

PLAN APPROPRIATE EXERCISE

The members of the city high school will commemorate the hundredth birthday anniversary of Edgar Allen Poe tomorrow morning in the Graham school building with a short program.

Miss Olive Traylor, instructor of English in the high school, will read a paper on the "Life and Work of Edgar Allen Poe." Several readings of Poe's work will be given among which are "The Haunted Palace," by Fanny Gregg; "Annabel Lee" by Miss Louise Mauzy; and "Evening Star," by Miss Rhea Bigham. The musical program will be in charge of Miss Anna Overman. All of the pupils in the grade schools will celebrate the anniversary with appropriate exercises.

LECTURE SERMON ATTRACTS CROWD

Highly Pleasing Was the Impressive Story of Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.

ILLUSTRATED WITH PICTURES

A big audience that filled the Main Auditorium gathered at the Main Street Christian church to hear the lecture-sermon by Rev. R. W. Aberley on John Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" last night. The lecture was beautifully illustrated with electric pictures showing the pilgrimage of Christian from the "City of Destruction to Mount Zion" and the thrilling story of this great allegory and its profound religious instruction made a strong impression. The series of lectures will be continued on next Sunday evening.

RECEIVE MESSAGE FROM EVANGELIST

Mr. Yeuell, Special Singer, Will Precede Him Here, Coming Next Sunday.

PREPARING FOR THE REVIVAL

A dispatch was received yesterday from Evangelist Yeuell, saying he would arrive in Rushville to begin the great meeting at the Main Street Christian church on Thursday, January 28. Mr. Yeuell and the church were compelled to adjourn these meetings from January 3d, the original date set on account of the orders of the health board, but now at the earliest date the original plan for the meeting must be carried out as the evangelist has other engagements to meet later. Mr. Yeuell's special singer, who will lead the chorus will be present to begin his work next Sunday.

The official board of the church meets Wednesday night to plan further for the meetings. The mid-week service of the church this week will be held Wednesday night to accommodate the high school which desires to use the auditorium on Thursday night.

DEDICATION OF NEW HOUSE OF WORSHIP

Rev. L. L. Carpenter of Wabash Delivered Dedictory Sermon. Rev. Howe Assisting.

BIG CHURCH DAY AT DUNREITH

Rush and Henry county people joined in making the dedication of the new Christian church at Dunreith yesterday, an affair long to be remembered. Services were held in the morning, afternoon and evening. Rev. L. L. Carpenter of Wabash delivered the dedicatory sermon. Rev. L. C. Howe assisted in the service. Musical talent from New Castle and Knightstown was a pleasant feature of all the services. A basket lunch was served at noon in the school building near the church.

PROHIBITIONISTS RAP REPUBLICANS

State Chairman, Coming Here Wednesday, Says he Would Rather Have a Saloon

THAN VOTE WITH REPUBLICANS

County local option and the Republican party came in for a grilling at the hands of State Chairman Lough of the Prohibition party, who addressed the county convention of that party in the Odd Fellows hall on Saturday at Connersville.

Referring to county local option, Mr. Lough said that in Texas the brewers and saloon keepers were going about the country with Hanly's speech and the Methodist discipline trying to convince the people that county local option ought to be continued.

The State chairman grilled the Republican party in these words: "If I had to choose between voting the Republican ticket and running a saloon, I'd start a saloon."

Mr. Lough will speak in Rushville Wednesday.

ARE RUNNING OUT OF INK

It is Estimated That 1000 Have Now Signed the Option Petitions.

The advocates of the county option petitions say that workers in the movement are now active in every precinct in the county and it is estimated that at least one thousand have signed the instruments. It is further estimated that at least fifty per cent. of the voters of Rush county will have signed the petitions by January 28, when they will be filed in the county commissioners court.

AND WHO IS GREEN?

Shelbyville Liberal: William Pile yesterday sold his trotting stallion, Mack, 2:24, to a Mr. Green of Rush county, receiving $1000 for the splendid animal. Mr. Green turned the horse over to David Wagner to be trained for the races next summer.

Here's Where the Fun Comes In

Circumstantial evidence is against Elmer Hufford. Hufford lives south of this city on a farm and a chicken not belonging to him was found in his possession. Elmer contends that the fowl just took a liking to him and wanted to have him adopt and provide a home for it. The chicken in question is the property of Mrs. T. W. Betker of East First street. Her chicken yard is bound by the chains around the public hitch rack, in the rear of her home. And for that reason Elmer will probably not have to suffer arrest. It was either the truth, or a guilty conscience that prompted Elmer to phone Saturday evening saying he had a chicken belonging presumably to Mrs. Betker. He said he found it under the seat of his buggy on arriving home. Mrs. Betker explains that her chickens are all well behaved and she allows them to wander around the neighborhood. They have a mania for climbing in other people's buggies—this she admits and swears is a fact. They often go out and lay eggs in the buggies at the hitch rack. When she starts to gather her eggs in the evening, she has to make the rounds of all the vehicles at the rack. To get all the eggs she would be obliged to make a tour of the county, for some people drive home early. In one buggy she recently found where one of her hens laid a dozen eggs in a basket and then carefully "laid" a napkin over them. Strange chickens, these! Saturday's game will have to be played over as it is said "Hufford went home on a fowl."

Homer Havens, the grocer, fell on the stone steps at St. Paul's M. E. church Sunday afternoon and is now under the care of a physician. The ligaments in his back were torn loose and his ribs were injured. He will be laid up for some time.

Chapter 27

Even before Neergard's illness Ruthven's domestic and financial affairs were in a villainous mess. Rid of Neergard, he had meant to deal him a crushing blow at the breakaway which would settle him forever and incidentally bring to a crisis his own status in regard to his wife.

Whether or not his wife was mentally competent he did not know. He did not know anything about her. But he meant to.

That she had been and probably now was under Selwyn's protection he believed. What she and Selwyn intended to do he did not know. But he wanted to know. He dared not ask Selwyn—dared not because he was horribly afraid of Selwyn—dared not yet make a legal issue of their relations, of her sequestration or of her probable continued infirmity because of his physical fear of the man.

But there was, or he thought that there had been, one way to begin the matter, because the matter must sooner or later be begun, and that was to pretend to assume Neergard responsible and on the strength of his wife's summer sojourn aboard the Niobrara turn on Neergard and demand a reckoning which he believed Selwyn would never hear of.

Ruthven was too dead afraid of Selwyn to begin suit at that stage of the proceedings. All he could do was to start, through his attorneys, a search for his wife and meanwhile try to formulate some sort of definite plan in regard to Gladys Orchil.

This, in brief, was Ruthven's general scheme of campaign, and the entire affair had taken some sort of shape and was slowly beginning to move when Neergard's illness came as an absolute check, just as the first papers were about to be served on him.

There was nothing to do but wait until Neergard got well, because his attorneys simply scoffed at any suggestion of settlement out of court, and Ruthven didn't want a suit involving his wife's name while he and Selwyn were in the same hemisphere.

But he could still continue an unobtrusive search for the whereabouts of his wife, which he did. And the chances were that his attorneys would find her without great difficulty, because Selwyn had not the slightest suspicion that he was being followed.

In these days Selwyn's life was methodical and colorless in its routine to the verge of dreariness.

When he was not at the government proving grounds on Sandy Hook he remained in his room at Lansing's, doggedly forcing himself into the only alternate occupation sufficient to dull the sadness of his mind—the preparation of a history of British military organization in India and its possible application to present conditions in the Philippines.

He had given up going out—made no further pretense—and Boots let him alone.

Once a week he called at the Gerards', spending most of his time while there with the children. Sometimes he saw Nina and Eileen, usually just returned or about to depart for some function, and his visit, as a rule, ended with a cup of tea alone with Austin and a quiet cigar in the library.

The elopement of Gerald and Gladys made a splash in the social puddle.

Eileen, loyal, but sorrowfully amazed at her brother's exclusion of her in such a crisis, became slowly overwhelmed with the realization of her loneliness and took to the seclusion of her own room, feeling tearful and abandoned and very much like a very little girl whose heart was becoming far too full of all sorts of sorrows.

Nina misunderstood her, finding her lying on her bed, her pale face pillowed in her hair.

"Only horribly ordinary people will believe that Gerald wanted her money," said Nina, "as though an Erroll considered such matters at all or needed to. Boots is a dear. Do you know what he's done?"

"What?" asked Eileen listlessly, raising the back of her slender hand from her eyes to peer at Nina through the glimmer of tears.

"Well, he and Phil have moved out of Boots' house, and Boots has wired Gerald and Gladys that the house is ready for them until they can find a place of their own. Of course they'll both come here. In fact, their luggage is upstairs now. Boots takes the blue room and Phil his old quarters. But don't you think it is perfectly sweet of Boots? And isn't it good to have Philip back again?"

"Yes," said Eileen faintly.

Nina laid a cool, smooth hand across her forehead, pushing back the hair, a light caress sensitive as an unasked question.

But there was no response, and presently the elder woman rose and went out along the landing, and Eileen heard her laughingly greeting Boots, who had arrived posthaste on learning that Drina was indisposed.

"Don't be frightened. The little wretch carried tons of indigestible stuff to her room and sat up half the night eating it. Where's Philip?"

"I don't know. Here's a special delivery for him. I signed for it and brought it from the house. He'll be here from the Hook soon, I fancy."

Half an hour later Drina was asleep, holding fast to Boots' sleeve, and that young gentleman sat in a chair beside her discussing with her pretty mother the plans made for Gladys and Gerald on their expected arrival.

Eileen, pale and heavily lidded, looked in on her way to some afternoon affair, nodding unsmiling at Boots.

"Have you been riding the pantry, too?" he whispered. "You lack your usual chromatic symphony."

"No. I'm just very tired. If I wasn't physically afraid of Drina I'd get you to run off with me—anywhere. What is that letter, Nina? For me?"

"It's for Phil. Boots brought it around. Leave it on the library table, dear, when you go down."

Eileen took the letter and turned away. A few moments later as she laid it on the library table her eyes involuntarily noted the superscription written in the long, angular, fashionable writing of a woman.

And slowly the inevitable question took shape within her.

How long she stood there she did not know, but the points of her gloved fingers were still resting on the table and her gaze was still concentrated on the envelope when she felt Selwyn's presence in the room, near, close, and looked up into his steady eyes—and knew he loved her.

And suddenly she broke down, for with his deep gaze in hers the overwrought specter had fled.

"What is it?" he made out to say, managing also to keep his hands off her where she sat, bowed and quivering by the table.

"Nothing—a little crisis—over now—nearly over. It was that letter—other women writing you—and I—out-lawed—tongue tied. Don't look at me; don't wait. I—I am going out."

He went to the window, stood a moment, came back to the table, took his letter and walked slowly again to the window.

After awhile he heard the rustle of her gown as she left the room, and a little later he straightened up, passed his hand across his tired eyes and, looking down at the letter in his hand, broke the seal.

It was from one of the nurses, Miss Casson, and shorter than usual:

"Mrs. Ruthven is physically in perfect health, but yesterday we noted a rather startling change in her mental condition. There were during the day intervals that seemed perfectly lucid. Once she spoke of Miss Bond as 'the other nurse,' as though she realized something of the conditions surrounding her. Once, too, she seemed astonished when I brought her a doll and asked me, 'Is there a child here, or is it for a charity bazaar?'"

"Later I found her writing a letter at my desk. She left it unfinished when she went to drive, a mere scrap. I thought it best to inclose it, which I do herewith."

The inclosed he opened:

"Phil, dear, though I have been very El, I know you are my own husband. All the rest was only a child's dream of terror."

And that was all, only this scrap, firmly written in the easy flowing hand he knew so well. He studied it for a moment or two, then resumed Miss Casson's letter:

"A man stopped our sleigh yesterday, asking if he was not speaking to Mrs. Ruthven. I was a trifle worried and replied that any communication for Mrs. Ruthven could be sent to me."

"That evening two men—gentlemen apparently—came to the house and asked for me. I went down to receive them. One was a Dr. Mallison; the other said his name was Thomas B. Hallam, but gave no business address. "When I found that they had come without your knowledge and authority I refused to discuss Mrs. Ruthven's condition, and the one who said his name was Hallam spoke rather peremptorily and in a way that made me think he might be a lawyer."

"They got nothing out of me, and they left when I made it plain that I had nothing to tell them."

"I thought it best to let you know about this, though I personally cannot guess what it might mean."

Selwyn turned the page:

"One other matter worries Miss Bond and myself. The revolver you sent us at my request has disappeared. We are nearly sure Mrs. Ruthven has it—you know she once dressed it as a doll, calling it her army doll—but now we can't find it. She has hidden it somewhere—out of doors in the shrubbery, we think—and Miss Bond and I expect to secure it the next time she takes a fancy to have all her dolls out for a 'lawn party.'"

"Dr. Wesson says there is no danger of her doing any harm with it, but wants us to secure it at the first opportunity."

He turned the last page. On the other side were merely the formula of leave taking and Miss Casson's signature.

For awhile he stood in the center of the room, head bent, narrowing eyes fixed; then he folded the letter, pocketed it and walked to the table where a directory lay.

He found the name, Hallam, very easily—Thomas B. Hallam, lawyer, junior in the firm of Spencer, Boyd & Hallam. They were attorneys for Jack Ruthven. He knew that.

Mallison he also found—Dr. James Mallison, who, it appeared, conducted some sort of private asylum on Long Island. What was Ruthven after?

Dental Hygiene the Subject of Conference Beginning Tonight.

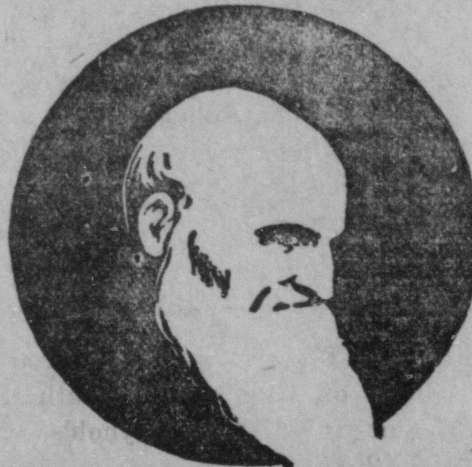

Boston, Jan. 18.—In an effort "to educate the public as to the necessity of keeping the mouth and teeth clean and healthy, to establish dental hygiene in schools as a part of public education to prevent the spread of infectious diseases, to prevent pain and increase the mental and physical efficiency of school people and to establish infirmaries for the treatment of diseased conditions of the mouth and teeth," the Massachusetts sets state conference on oral and dental hygiene will begin a six days' session here tonight.

The leaders of the conference declare that the importance of dental hygiene has never been understood or appreciated by the public at large.

Crew Forgot the Passenger.

Coffeyville, Kan., Jan. 18.—A passenger train on the Missouri Pacific railroad collided head-on with a freight train two miles west of this city. Twenty-four passengers were hurt, but only two are in a serious condition. The freight crew, it is said, admit that they had overlooked the time of the passenger train.

ONE MILLION DOLLARS FOR A GOOD STOMACH

This offer Should be a Warning to Every Man and Woman.

The newspapers and medical journals recently have had much to say relative to a famous millionaire's offer of a million dollars for a new stomach.

This great multi-millionaire was too busy to worry about the condition of his stomach. He allowed his dyspepsia to run from bad to worse until in the end it became incurable.

His misfortune serves as a warning to others.

Everyone who suffers with dyspepsia for a few years will give everything he owns for a new stomach.

Dyspepsia is caused by a abnormal state of the gastric juices. There is one element missing. The absence of this destroys the functions of the gastric fluids. They lose their power to digest food.

We are now able to supply the missing element—to restore to the gastric juices their digestive power, and to make the stomach strong and well.

We know Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets will positively and permanently cure disordered stomachs, indigestions and dyspepsia.

We want you to try them and will return money if you are not more than satisfied with the result.

Price, 25 cents, only at our store or by mail. Lytle's Drug Store, Third and Main street.

INDIANA POLITICS

ROBERT G. TUCKER.

Indianapolis, Jan. 18.—John W. Kern has assured the representatives from Marion county that he is satisfied that they stood by him in the senatorial caucus. Since the intimation of "double crossing" have gone abroad the Marion county members of the general assembly have been writhing under the accusation. It is now expected they will get some crumb of comfort from the statement of Mr. Kern. The four representatives to whom Mr. Kern extended the assurance of his distinguished consideration were Maas, Pierson, Seidensticker and Zearing. The meeting was entirely casual and took place in the Denison hotel. Kern was assured by the four that no one from Marion had "double crossed" him, except on "the eleventh ballot," when they swung for Lamb. It was at this point that Mr. Kern interrupted and told the four that he had never mentioned any names in making his charge, and expressed his conviction that the Marion county men had been loyal. It is asserted that on the last ballot, the twelfth, every Marion county vote was for Kern. In proof of this the Marion county men say that it must be so because Kern's strength was thirty-five votes, when the greatest strength shown previously had been thirty-seven, when he had drawn from the Slack forces.

Representative Rodibaugh has a new anti-horsestealing bill. Farmers and owners of domestic cattle have found it hard work to trace and detect thieves who make a specialty of carrying off domestic cattle. Rodibaugh says that the result of their work in the past years has demonstrated that horsestealers are specialists, stealing only horses; that imprisonment does not reform them; and that the only remedy is to give them a longer sentence. In accordance with this idea Rodibaugh is to introduce a bill to raise the sentence term from two to fourteen years to a term of ten to twenty years. A law to relieve property owners of assessments for street paving where the property owned is not upon the street paved, is also proposed by Rodibaugh. The present law assesses all property within 100 feet for street paving. Rodibaugh recently paid $217 for street paving in front of his home at Goshen and says he was willing to do it. He objects, however, to paying on an adjoining street which, as he expresses it, would not add one cent's worth to the value of his property.

Although defeated for the United States senate, Edward G. Hoffman, the Fort Wayne candidate, made a fine race for a young aspirant for such high honors. It is conceded that he conducted his campaign in a manner that not only reflects credit on himself but gave him an introduction to state politics that will make him a factor hereafter. The candidacy of Hoffman and the support given him by the Twelfth district members, undoubtedly proved the downfall of John Kerr and the Indianapolis crowd. If they could have broken down the Hoffman vote they could have have nominated Kern, but Hoffman's members stuck as long as there was any hope and then joined with many others in electing Shively. It is conceded that his candidacy helped to enthuse the younger members of the party that they will be able to take a more prominent part hereafter in party affairs.

DIAMOND JUBILEE FOR METHODISTS TONIGHT

Birth of Missions to Be Celebrated in Washington.

Washington, Jan. 18.—In the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church in this city Methodist Episcopalians will celebrate with prayer and music and addresses the diamond jubilee of the beginning of the missionary movement of the church. Seventy-five years ago the church sent out its first missionary in the person of Melville B. Cox, who landed on the west coast of Africa in Liberia, and began the work that has now spread to all parts of the civilized and uncivilized world.

President Roosevelt and vice President Fairbanks will speak at tonight's celebration. Other speakers will be Earl Cranston, Methodist Episcopal bishop of Washington, and Joseph C. Hartzell, missionary bishop to Africa since 1896.

One purpose of the celebration is the starting of a fund to equip in better manner the stations of the Methodist Episcopal church in Africa. There are six of these in different parts of the continent, and the sum of $300,000 is needed to aid in the spreading of their work. Members of the church will be asked tonight to contribute that sum in commemoration of the diamond jubilee, in addition to their regular offerings.

KILLED TWO AND HIMSELF

Former Bank Examiner for Illinois Seelye Brooded Over Reverses.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 18.—W. L. Seelye, an attorney and former national bank examiner for Illinois under Controller of the Currency Eckels, his wife, Mrs. Kate M. Seelye, a member of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution and his daughter, Miss Rene Seelye, a student at the University of Washington and a member of the Delta Gamma society, were found dead in their home in the fashionable Capital Hill district Sunday. The victims had been dead since the previous Thursday. The women had been murdered by being struck on the head, evidently with a hammer. There was no mark of violence on Seelye. He is believed to have been partially chloroformed and then drowned in the bathtub. That Seelye killed his wife and daughter while insane over financial worries and then committed suicide, is the theory of the coroner and the police.

CEREMONIES QUITE SIMPLE

Inauguration of Governor Deneen Today.

THE TUG OF WAR TOMORROW

Interesting Contest for United States

Senate Precipitated in Illinois by Action of the Shurtell Factions Will Have Its First Decisive Test When Matter Comes Up on Formal Ballot Tomorrow—Governor Deneen Followed His Inauguration Today by Reading His Message to the General Assembly.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 18.—In addition to the inaugural ceremonies which took place today in the state house, the present week holds a prospect of settling the question of who shall represent Illinois for the next six years in the United States senate.

The members of the general assembly will meet in their separate houses tomorrow and cast one ballot for United States senator. If the same man receives a majority of the votes in each house, the election is complete. In the event of a failure of any one candidate to so receive a majority of the vote in each house, the joint session will take up the balloting on Wednesday, and then a majority of all the members of the joint assembly, or 103 votes, is required for election.

It is the general opinion among legislators that Senator Hopkins will not receive a majority of the votes in the house tomorrow on the separate ballot and that the election will be thrown into joint sessions, where the chances for the final election of another candidate might be greater.

It is well known that a number of the legislators in the house who joined in the Republican caucus on the speakership are opposed to Senator Hopkins and members of the group of followers of Speaker Shurtell are also known to be opposed to Senator Hopkins.

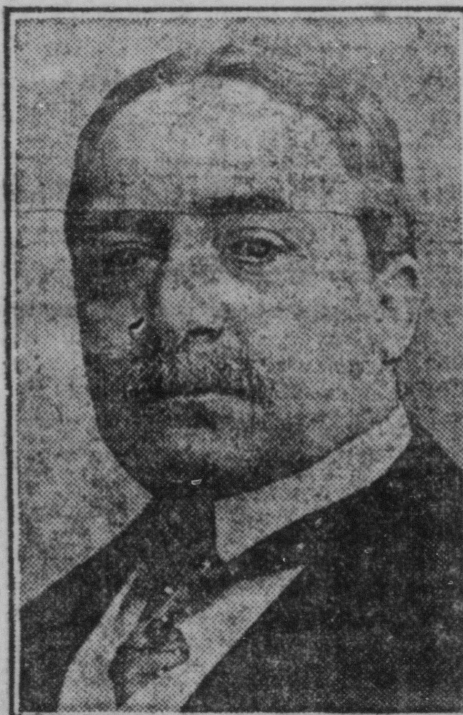

Simple Inaugural Ceremonies.

The inaugural ceremonies today were quite simple. Promptly at noon, in the hall of representatives, the oaths of office were administered by Chief Justice Cartwright to the incoming officers, and Governor Deneen's message was read by him. In the afternoon a state dinner was given in the executive mansion and a public reception this evening in the state house will close the ceremonies of installation in office.

Glenwood Springs, Col., Jan. 18.—The confusion following upon the wreck at Dotsero, in which twenty-one persons were killed, is gradually being straightened out. There have been no deaths among the injured since Saturday, and more hope is entertained for the recovery of those whose condition is serious. There were 136 passengers on the train, and most of them are accounted for. George Mahon of Princeton, Ind., is missing. His wife is one of the seriously injured and in no condition to give a description. She insists that her husband and father were on the train. The father, Henry Dunn of St. Louis, has been found among the dead. Among the dead is A. A. Hamilton of Polo, Ill. Thomas Cadwallader of Joliet, Ill., is among the seriously injured.

she lost when the islands were annexed to the United States, says she believes congress will make some reparation for her great financial loss.

"I am now reconciled to the change of government in Hawaii," said the ex-queen. "But I am too loyal to the United States to be willing to be the occasion of reproach when future historians shall tell how this government was enriched by accepting without compensation land it had assisted in taking from a weaker sovereign."

"Through the loyalty of the Hawaiian people, I can end my days without actual want, but if this nation does not soon act it will lose forever the opportunity to make reparation for what one of its presidents called an unwarranted act. Hawaii has cost this nation nothing, but valuable lands have been added to this country's domain by its acquisition. Although this government assumed $4,000,000 of Hawaii's debt, the cash revenues to the federal treasury since annexation have amounted to over $10,000,000."

The former queen is seventy-one years of age and bowed with the grief of blighted hopes. She speaks falteringly when she alludes to the days that were glorious for her as ruler of a kingdom.
